FELL DEAD IN NEW YORK.

A Philadelphian Falls a Victim to Paralysis While Waiting for a Train.

A dispatch received from New York last night stated that William Cheyney, of 15 South Seventh street, Philadelphia, died of paralysis late in the afternoon while waiting for an elevated railroad train at Church and Courtland street.

At the address given are offices occupied by Wm. A. and Chas. H. Cheyney, conveyancers. They both reside at Cheyney Station, on the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Railroad, and no one could be found in the city last night who could say whether or not the man who died in New York was one of them. They are father and son, the elder being about 80 years of age. Both are well known to lawyers and real estate dealers and stand high in their profession.

4-11-92— 8 P.M. — My dear Son. I have nothing from you today but will close this. I have a letter from Senator Stewart this morning saying he has seen it stated in a California paper that there is a big strike of rich ore in Jamison Mine and nothing to know all particulars - about Sunnel &c. I wish Neville would be more cautious. Sent Stewart your letter and last letter accompanying map, asking him to return to the yeke as soon as he is through with them. The above was brought to us at the house yesterday aft. clipped from the Morning Sunday Times. It was Will's other. He had left here at 5 P.M. in his usual good health, apparently. I know nothing of the particulars but assume that he had given up those high steps at Courtlandt St. Station - His body is arrested here this aft. —

I have telegram from Church that he will be here at 2 P.M. all about as well as usual.

Love of Yr. Mother & Father W. J. Cheyney
